

Youthful Couple Elope To Towson

Bride, Who Looks Like School Girl,
Hides License Notice
From Mother.

"Dan Cupid's" arrow again hit its mark yesterday afternoon. Miss Adelaide Weissner, 2744 St. Paul street, and Laurence C. MacDaniel, of Baltimore county, were secretly married at the parsonage of Calvary Baptist Church, Towson. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. David Clark, the pastor.

"We don't want anything in the paper about this affair," said Miss Weissner, or rather Mrs. MacDaniel, when a reporter called at the St. Paul street home. "How in the world did you find out that we were married?" she continued, almost in the same breath.

She was told that the license had been published in THE SUN this morning.

The youthful bride, decidedly pretty and with long black curls down her back, then admitted that her mother did not know anything of the wedding. "I know that the license was printed in the morning paper, but I hid the paper so mother would not find out about the marriage," she said in a nervous tone. "I don't care if mother does know about it this afternoon," she said, "and, by the way, you may come back and break the news to her."
